ROBERTO HECKSCHER

On June 8, 2009, racked by despair, guilt, shame and -- more than anything else -- humiliation, Roberto Heckscher swallowed 90 Ambien (Zolpidem Tartrate) sleeping pills and laid down on his bed to die. For the previous 30 days or more, his increasing feelings of regret, despondency and hopelessness had gradually overwhelmed his judgment until, seen through a glass, darkly, his life no longer appeared to have worth or meaning.

1 On that day, Mr. Heckscher genuinely believed that ending his 2 life was the only logical and reasonable course of action left to 3 him. He wrote a note explaining why and concluding, "For everyone
4 whose life I have touched, I pray that you will be able to come to 5 grips with the betrayal I have imposed on you. You did not deserve
6 it. I am so, so, very sorry ....." (A copy of the complete suicide
7 note is attached hereto as Exhibit A.)

8 As he later came to realize, this attempt was in fact
9 irrational, cowardly and selfish. Fortunately, Mr. Heckscher had 10 shared the cause of his despair the previous night with his wife
11 Cynthia and had showed her his suicide note. Stunned by what her 12 husband had told her, Mrs. Heckscher had spent a restless night and,
13 by the next day, had decided that she should notify law enforcement.

14 When she did so, officers of the San Mateo Police Department
15 went to their home and found Mr. Heckscher comatose. He was taken to 16 the hospital, treated and then held for a psychiatric evaluation
17 pursuant to California Welfare & Institutions Code section 5150.

18 What had brought the Heckschers to this mutual nightmare had 19 been building for approximately 30 years and is, of course, the 20 underlying basis of the prosecution in this case. The genesis of the 21 problem which ultimately led to Mr. Heckscher's appearance before 22 this court was, by way of almost bizarre coincidence, the largest 23 individual financial collapse to that point in history.

24 In the 1970's, two sons of Texas oil billionaire H. L. Hunt, 25 Nelson "Bunker" Hunt and William "Herbert" Hunt, tried to corner the 26 world silver market and very nearly succeeded. They managed to run 27 up the price of silver from $1.50 an ounce in 1970 to nearly $50 an 28 ounce in 1980, by which time the Hunts owned $4.5 billion worth of

1 silver bullion. At that time, they also held futures contracts, at 2 more than $50 per ounce, for another $135 million worth of the 3 precious metal.

4 Then COMEX suspended trading of silver and the Federal Reserve
5 raised interest rates. On March 25, 1980, the price of silver
6 plummeted to $21.62 and the Hunts could not meet a $100 million
7 margin call. The next day, the so-called "Silver Thursday", the 8 metal dropped again to $10.80 and the Hunts found themselves more 9 than $1 billion in debt, a level never before then achieved by any 10 non-governmental individual or organization.

11 The margin call which brought down the Hunt brothers also caught
12 Mr. Heckscher short, as he had joined in the purchase of silver
13 futures during the price run up. Fortuitously (or not, as things 14 turned out), an early client of Mr. Heckscher's accounting business
15 happened at that very time to be looking for an investment
16 opportunity. Mr. Heckscher borrowed the money to cover his margin 17 call and thus began the long downward spiral that culminated in his 18 suicide attempt and this prosecution.

19 When repaying the initial investment exceeded Mr. Heckscher's
20 disposable income, he compounded the problem by borrowing more money,
21 as ostensible "investments", to cover what he had to repay. As time
22 went on, in the classic manner of such programs, the amount he owed
23 continued to grow, as did the amount of money that he had to obtain 24 from new "investors" to make the payments and keep the program going.

II

A MODEST LIFE

The reported multi-million dollar loss in this case is typical of Ponzi schemes. Nevertheless, Mr. Heckscher's situation is extraordinarily atypical for two primary reasons:

First, the perpetrators of such schemes usually use the proceeds of their fraud for self-aggrandizement, converting vast sums of money to their personal use. They typically buy expensive homes, luxury cars, jewelry, art and other collectibles, vacation homes and even private planes and yachts.

Mr. Heckscher, on the other hand, never used any of the money he obtained in this scheme for personal purchases. He and his wife lived a modest lifestyle, residing in a typical middle-class home in San Mateo and continuing, in his case, to work six days a week at his accounting and tax preparation business. They drove modest cars, rarely travelled or took vacations, and made no expensive purchases.

To the extent that new investment money was not used to pay interest or repay principle to previous investors, it was used solely in efforts, however misguided, to recoup losses and dig himself out of the hole Mr. Heckscher had created for himself. Some stock investments and even his gambling activities were desperate attempts to extricate himself from his financial morass.

Second, while operators of Ponzi schemes usually take a lot of money out of their "investment" programs, they never put anything in.

Mr. Heckscher was, again, atypical, in that he often used money earned from his primary business (accounting and tax preparation) to pay interest or repay principle owed to his investors.

1 At this initial meeting, Mr. Heckscher gave a complete and 2 thorough statement regarding his Ponzi scheme, and provided all of 3 his records regarding investments, interest payments and repayments
4 of principal to investors. He also agreed to provide bank records
5 and any other information requested by the FBI.

6 Mr. Heckscher had been prepared to be arrested and taken into 7 custody at his initial meeting with the FBI, but this did not occur.

8 On Friday, June 26, 2009, Special Agent Desor visited Mr.
9 Heckscher's office to pick up the bank records and other documents
10 pertinent to the investigation.

11 Subsequently, the charge in this case was filed, a plea
12 agreement was reached and Mr. Heckscher was arraigned and entered a 13 conditional plea of guilty on October 30, 2009.

14 He has at all times since coming forward been completely 15 forthright regarding his activities and has cooperated fully with the 16 FBI and the US Attorney's Office.

17 By entering a plea of guilty, Mr. Heckscher has saved the 18 government the cost of preparing for and conducting a trial of this 19 matter. His plea of guilty also obviates any need for the victims to 20 have to testify, thereby alleviating, in however small a degree, 21 their emotional distress in this regard.

23 A PONZI SCHEME SURVEY

24
25
26
27 Considering the inevitability of collapse and the penal 28 consequences attendant thereto, there have been a surprisingly large number of Ponzi scheme convictions in recent years. A survey of some similar federal court ponzi scheme cases is instructive, both in terms of monetary loss and sentencing considerations.

Defendant's Name:	Location:	Approximate Loss:	Sentence:
-------------------	-----------	-------------------	-----------

Bernard Madoff	New York	$18 Billion	150 Years
----------------	----------	--------------	-----------

While executing the most extensive Ponzi scheme ever, Mr. Madoff lived a lavish lifestyle, diverting millions of dollars to his personal use over a 20 year period.

Richard Harkless	California	$39 Million	100 Years

This scheme lasted just 4 years and Mr. Harkless diverted millions of dollars to personal accounts in Belize and Mexico. He fled to Mexico for five years before being captured and convicted at trial.

Tom Petters	Minnesota	$3.65 Billion	50 Years

Second only to Bernard Madoff in total loss, this scheme by Mr. Petters used millions of dollars to fund his business interests and to maintain a lavish, extravagant life style, including an expensive home and vehicles, as well as extensive travel.

James Bunchan	Massachusetts	$30 Million	35 Years

In addition to defrauding 400 victims, Mr. Bunchan solicited the murder of 12 witnesses against him and discussed the killing of the federal prosecutor handling his case. He was sentenced to 25 years for the solicitation to kill the witnesses.

Scott Rothstein            Florida            $1.2 Billion            Pending

A lawyer, Mr. Rothstein is attempting to reduce a possible 100 year sentence by cooperating with authorities. The US Attorney has agreed not to seek a life sentence and a prison sentence in the 20-35 year range seems likely. Money was diverted for several homes, 16 luxury vehicles and sports cars, hundreds of pieces of jewelry and 20 bank accounts (one in Switzerland). He also made millions of dollars in political campaign contributions.

Gerald Payne            Florida            $448 Million            27 Years

Minister swindle of church members, with hundreds of millions of dollars "disappeared" and unaccounted for. Thought to be connected to a militant, right-wing group that planned to buy a Caribbean Island. His wife Betty was sentenced to 13 years after the Paynes and two associates were convicted at trial.

Benny Judah            Texas            $60 Million            25 Years

In just four years, Mr. Judah defrauded 250 investors out of nearly $60 million, violated a specific judicial injunction, violated securities laws, and obstructed and impeded the administration of justice.

1 Randall Treadwell California $50 Million 25 Years

2 Among other things, Mr. Treadwell used the proceeds of 3 his scheme to purchase an expensive home in Georgia, a
4 Jacksonville Jaguars luxury box, a $100,000 boat and a
5 Caribbean cruise. A companion who made false statements
6 to investigators was sentenced to 7 years.

8 Milton Retana California $62 Million 25 Years

9 Mr. Retana defrauded approximately 2300 primarily Spanish-
10 speaking victims and was convicted at trial of six counts
11 of wire fraud. Actual losses after payments of interest
12 were about $33 million. When arrested, Mr. Retana had 13 $800,000 in cash in his desk, $3.2 million hidden in the 14 back of his bookstore and $8 million in bank accounts.

15
16 Norman Hsu New York $100 Million 24 Years, 4 Months

17 Mr. Hsu swindled victims out of $100 million, with an 18 actual loss of $80 million, and used most of the money to 19 finance a lavish lifestyle. He was also convicted at trial 20 of campaign finance fraud and sentenced to 52 months to 21 run consecutively to a 20 year Ponzi scheme sentence.

22
23 Wayne Puff New Jersey $120 Million 18 Years

24 In a 7 year scheme, Puff and associates obtained more than 25 $120 million from victims, with actual losses of $101
26 million ordered as restitution. Puff diverted millions to 27 pay personal expenses, including travel expenses to the 28 Cayman Islands.

1 Andres L. Pimstein Florida $25 Million 17 Years

2 Mr. Pimstein used investor money to fund his business
3 interests and diverted significant amounts to pay his
4 personal expenses. A significant portion of the missing
5 money has not yet been accounted for.

7 Michael Heshelman Michigan $7 Million 17 Years

8 Mr. Heshelman was convicted at trial on multiple counts of 9 bank and wire fraud. He used the "investments" to pay for 10 personal and unrelated business expenses, including
11 $25,000 hotel bills, international travel and extravagant
12 dinners. He was arrested while travelling outside the 13 United States in Switzerland.
14

15 Sean N. Healy Pennsylvania $16.7 Million 15 Years 8 Months

16 Mr. Healy spent $10 million in just one year on a lavish
17 lifestyle. His purchases included former football star
18 Bernie Kosar's $2.4 million mansion (on which he made 19 another $2 million in renovations), four Lamborghinis, 20 three Porsches, two Ferraris and 8 other sports cars, as 21 well as $1.5 million in jewelry.
22

23 Joseph Forte Pennsylvania $80 Million 15 Years

24 In a scheme that lasted 13 years, Mr. Forte took in $80
25 million and swindled investors out of at least $35 million, 26 of which he diverted between $12 and $28 million to his 27 personal use.
28

1 Neola Midkiff Minnesota $30 Million 15 Years

2 Convicted at trial of eight counts each of mail and wire
3 fraud, as well as other offenses, the 15 year sentence
4 was a downward departure from the maximum possible life
5 sentence faced by Mr. Midkiff.

7 John Anthony Miller California $21 Million 13 Years

8 With his scheme unraveling, Mr. Miller solicited an under-
9 cover informant to assist him in obtaining a fake passport
10 to a country that did not extradite to the US.
11

12 Wesley A. Snyder Pennsylvania $29 Million 12 Years, 2 Months

13 Mr. Snyder operated a mortgage company Ponzi scheme in 14 which most of the money went to pay interest and repay
15 principal to earlier investors.
16

17 Kalin Dao Minnesota $7 Million 12 Years

18 Miss Dao defrauded 517 people, many of whom are immigrants.
19 She continued doing so, by changing the name of her firm,
20 after accepting a consent decree to stop selling
21 unregistered securities.
22

23 Darrell Underwood Virginia $18 Million 10 Years

24 When arrested, Mr. Underwood and his wife had $890,000 in 25 the bank and owned 35 properties located around the state
26 of Virginia. They were convicted at trial after denying 27 any wrongdoing. Mrs. Underwood was sentenced to 3 years.
28

1 Patrick Davison Montana $6.8 Million 10 Years

2 In an 8 year scheme, Mr. Davison diverted most of the lost
3 money to his personal use, according to prosecutors.

5 Charles E. Hays Minnesota $22 Million 9 Years 9 Months

6 At the time of his arrest, Mr. Hays had more than 7 $1 million in the bank and had used investor money to 8 purchase a $3 million 64-foot yacht, several cars, a house,
9 a crane, tractors, gold coins and family vacations.
10

11 Richard Johnson Michigan $13.2 Million 8 Years

12 Of the $13.2 million unaccounted for in Mr. Johnson's 13 10+ year scheme, a significant portion of the actual loss
14 was diverted to his personal use, according to US Attorney
15 Barbara McQuade.
16

17 John M. Donnelly Virginia $5.4 Million 7 Years, 6 Months

18 Mr. Donnelly used the proceeds of his fraud to fund a
19 luxurious lifestyle, buying an expensive home, a Hummer,
20 64 acres of land and numerous motorcycles.
21

22 John Montana New York $33 Million 6 Years

23 In a two year, international fraud scheme, Mr. Montana and 24 three associates caused an actual loss of at least $13.6
25 million. Co-defendants were sentenced to 14 and 20 years.
26

27 Salvatore Favata California $30 Million 5 Years

28 Mr. Favata lived an extravagant lifestyle with gambling

1 debts in excess of $10 million, leased luxury vehicles,
2 and hosted lavish house parties and community music
3 festivals. His plea agreement was for a 5 year sentence.

5 Strikingly, of the 26 cases mentioned above, only one compares
6 with Mr. Heckscher's situation in that the vast majority of the money
7 obtained in the scheme went to pay interest and repay principal,
8 rather than being diverted to enhance the personal life of the 9 defendant (that being Wesley A. Snyder, whose fraud involved $29 10 million and who was sentenced to 12 years and 2 months).

11 Nearly every one of the defendants discussed above used
12 significant amounts of their ill-gotten gains to lead extravagant
13 lifestyles; buy expensive homes, cars and jewelry; or travel
14 extensively.

15 Not one of these defendants was as forthcoming about his 16 offenses as Mr. Heckscher, who voluntarily surrendered, turned over 17 all of his records and gave a full, complete and truthful statement
18 about the nature and extent of his fraudulent activities, then 19 promptly agreed to enter into a plea agreement rather than forcing 20 the case to trial.

21 By way of comparison: Harkless fled to Mexico for five years;
22 Bunchan solicited the murder of witnesses and discussed killing the 23 AUSA who was prosecuting him; Payne planned to buy a Caribbean
24 island; Judah obstructed and impeded the administration of justice;
25 Heshelman was arrested in Switzerland; Miller solicited a fake
26 passport to another country; Dao violated a consent decree to stop
27 selling unregistered securities; and Underwood denied wrongdoing and 28 went to trial.

1 Of the cases closest to Mr. Heckscher's in total loss (those 2 ranging between $30 and $80 million):

3 Harkless stole $39 million in just 4 years, diverted millions to 4 foreign bank accounts and fled to Mexico for 5 years before being 5 captured and brought to trial.

6 Bunchan stole $30 million, solicited the murders of 12 witnesses
7 against him and discussed killing both the prosecutor handling his 8 case and the families of the witnesses.

9 Judah stole $60 million in just 4 years, violated a specific 10 court injunction in carrying out his scheme, and obstructed and 11 impeded the administration of justice.

12 Treadwell stole $50 million and converted a significant portion 13 of that money to support a self-indulgent lifestyle.

14 Retana stole $62 million from 2300 people in just 4 years. When 15 arrested, he had $800,000 in cash in his desk, $3.2 million hidden in 16 his bookstore, and $8 million in several bank accounts.

17 Forte stole $80 million in 13 years and diverted between $12 and 18 $28 million to his personal use. His sentence was 15 years.

19 Midkiff stole $30 million and was convicted at trial of eight
20 counts each of mail and wire fraud, plus other offenses, and received 21 a 15 year downward departure sentence (from a possible life 22 sentence).

23 Montana and his accomplices stole $33 million in just two years
24 and he received a 6 year sentence.

25 Favata stole $30 million in just 5 years, lived an extravagant
26 lifestyle and agreed to a plea bargain sentence of 5 years.

1       Of the cases for which defendants were sentenced (or in the case
2 of Rothstein could be sentenced) to more than the 20 year maximum to 3 which Mr. Heckscher could be sentenced, most involved thefts of 4 significantly more money than is involved here (Madoff $18 billion,
5 Petters $3.65 billion, Rothstein $1.2 billion, Payne $448 million, 6 Judah $60 million and Retana $62 million); involved particularly 7 egregious conduct (Harkless fled to Mexico for 5 years, Bunchan
8 solicited the murder of witnesses, and Judah violated a judicial 9 injunction and obstructed justice); and/or used significant amounts 10 of the money for high living (all of the above plus Treadwell & Hsu, 11 who also used the money to pervert the national political process).

12       Two cases for which defendants were sentenced to less than the 13 20 year maximum to which Mr. Heckscher could be sentenced involved
14 thefts of considerably more than the loss here (Puff, $120 million 15 and 18 years; Forte, $80 Million and 15 years).

16       Of the remaining cases for which defendants were sentenced to 17 more than 10 years, with just one exception, each of the defendants
18 is considerably more culpable than Mr. Heckscher (Pimstein, $25 19 million, 17 years and a significant loss still unaccounted for;
20 Heshelman, $7 million, 17 years and had to be arrested in 21 Switzerland; Healy, $16.7 million, 15 years 8 months and spent $10
22 million on himself in just one year; Miller, $21 million, 13 years 23 and attempted to obtain a fake passport to flee the country; and 24 Dao, $7 million, 12 years and continued her fraud in violation of a 25 consent decree to stop selling unregistered securities).

26       The sole exception is the case of Wesley A. Snyder, who received 27 12 years and 2 months for theft of $29 million, most of which was 28 returned to investors as interest or return of principal.

V*VICTIMS

Notwithstanding the foregoing discussion, there can be no gainsaying the harm done to the victims in this case by Mr. Heckscher. Some of them have suffered the loss of their entire life's savings. Some have physical or medical problems, the cost of treatment of which was being paid out of the interest payments from their "investments" with Mr. Heckscher. Some suffered seven figure losses which, no matter their financial circumstances otherwise, constituted significant, heart-breaking losses.

Many of the victims were accounting clients and/or personal friends, some were family (including both Mr. Heckscher's sister and his now ex-wife). All are feeling a sense of betrayal, violation of trust, pain and anger. All of which feelings are certainly valid and completely understandable under the circumstances.

There is nothing Mr. Heckscher can say that will assuage the pain and anger, the sense of violation and betrayal.

Nevertheless, he intends to address the victims during his sentencing hearing. He will acknowledge having abused their trust and will accept responsibility for his actions. He will express his sorrow and regret for what he did and will apologize for the pain he has caused.

The stark and discouraging reality is that, barring something akin to a miracle, Mr. Heckscher will never be able to make whole all of those who suffered losses as a result of his actions. He will, however, pledge to make whatever efforts he can, whenever he is released from custody, to maximize recompense to the victims.

VI*RESTITUTION

As noticed by the US Attorney's Office pursuant to 18 U.S.C. section 3664(d)(5), a complete compilation of the losses in this case have not yet been ascertained.

Mr. Heckscher therefore joins in the request by the United States that the court set a date for final determination of restitution for all victims, not to exceed 90 days after sentencing, to allow for the continued receipt of loss claims and calculation of an appropriate restitution schedule.

Mr. Heckscher also joins in the recommendation by the United States that the court appoint a special master empowered to make findings of fact and recommendations as to disposition of restitution, pursuant to 18 U.S.C. 3664(d)(6), and specifically to recommend a restitution schedule appropriate for each victim, pursuant to 18 U.S.C. 3664(i).

Information previously provided directly to counsel by various victims makes it clear that the individual economic circumstances of some victims mean that they have suffered disproportionately serious hardships and that these hardships should be accounted for in determining an appropriate restitution schedule.

Mr. Heckscher does have three significant assets which can be applied toward restitution either immediately or in the relatively near future. From the inception of Mr. Heckscher's cooperation in this matter, he agreed to conserve those assets for the purpose of making at least a start on the payment of restitution. These assets are his family home (jointly owned as community property by Mr.

1 Heckscher and his now ex-wife), a second residential income property
2 (also jointly owned by Mr. & Mrs. Heckscher as community property)
3 and a third home which is held in a trust in which Mr. Heckscher has 4 a one-fifth interest (the remaining 4/5's being held by other members
5 of his family -- his sister, brother, son and daughter, one-fifth 6 each).

7 As agreed between Mr. Heckscher and the U.S. Attorney's office,
8 the net proceeds of the sale of any of these properties, if sold
9 prior to sentencing, were to be held by counsel in a client trust
10 account. It was further agreed that the net proceeds would include 11 both Mr. and Mrs. Heckscher's community property interests in the 12 primary and income residences. With respect to the trust property, 13 Mr. Heckscher is the sole-owner of his 1/5 share and that share is 14 also to be paid over in full for the purpose of being applied toward 15 restitution.

16 Mr. Heckscher's primary residence has in fact been sold and the 17 net proceeds of slightly more than $360,000 are being held in a
18 Summit Defense CTA. (Although Cynthia Heckscher was herself a victim 19 of her husband's fraud, in excess of $200,000 from a separate
20 property inheritance and/or community property but otherwise 21 separately held income, the entire net proceeds of the sale of the 22 home was paid over directly out of escrow into the Summit CTA. As 23 agreed, Cynthia Heckscher derived no benefit from the sale of the 24 home.)

25 The residential income property is currently on the market for 26 sale. The trust property is occupied by a long-term tenant and will 27 be placed on the market when that tenant's lease expires.
